DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

1. Applicant's amendment of claims 1, 4, 5, 6, 9, 11, 12, 14, 16, 19, 22, 24-27, 30-32, 35-37, and 39 have been fully considered and are entered.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant's arguments, see Amendment A, filed 02 October 2003, with respect to the rejection(s) of claim(s) 1-40 under Medveczky have been fully considered and are persuasive. Therefore, the rejection has been withdrawn. However, upon further consideration, a new ground(s) of rejection is made in view of Ross, U.S. Patent No. 5,553,139.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claims 1, 3, 4, 7-12, 14-16, 18-27, 29, 30, 33-40 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Ross, U.S. Patent No. 5,553,139. Referring to claims 1, 3, 7, 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 21, 25, 27, 29, 33, 38, Ross discloses an electronic license distribution system wherein the user of a software package must request a license for the software in order to use the software. The user receives an enabler key (code) that is used to decrypt the license (encrypted generated message) upon receipt of payment (request), which meets the limitations of receiving a request for software and generated an encrypted message and determining there is a code available to the computer and decrypting the encrypted message with the determined code. Once the license has been decrypted the user can then access the software package using the software license (Col. 7, line 23 – Col. 8, line 24).

Referring to claims 4, 8, 9, 11, 19, 22, 24, 26, 30, 34, 35, 37, 39, Ross discloses that a checksum is generated at the user computer using the enabler key (public key) and that when the license is received, it is verified by comparing it's own checksum with that of the enabler key at the user computer. This meets the limitation of determining whether the decrypted response includes the generated message transmitted to the second computer system, and the second computer system being authorized to access the software if the response includes the generated message (Col. 7, lines 33 – 55).

Referring to claims 10, 15, 23, 36, 40, Ross discloses the licensing process prompting the installer for a product type and version and the desired features (configuration data)(Col. 7, lines 33-36).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 5, 6, 31, and 32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ross, U.S. Patent No. 5,553,139, in view of Komura, U.S. Patent No. 5,994,307. Referring to claims 5, 6, 31, and 32, Ross discloses an electronic license distribution system wherein the user of a software package must request a license for the software in order to use the software. The user receives an enabler key (code) that is used to decrypt the license (encrypted generated message) upon receipt of payment (request), which meets the limitations of receiving a request for software and generated an encrypted message and determining there is a code available to the computer and decrypting the encrypted message with the determined code. Once the license has been decrypted the user can then access the software package using the software license (Col. 7, line 23 – Col. 8, line 24). Ross does not disclose using time stamps as an offset in the transmitted messages. Komura discloses a packet transmission system wherein time stamp offset values are attached to data packets (message)(Col. 7, lines 22-30). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to use time stamp offset values in the system for license distribution for synchronizing purposes taught in Komura (Col. 6, lines 40-67).

7. Claims 2, 13, 17, 28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Ross, U.S. Patent No. 5,53,139, in view of Jia, U.S. Patent No. 5,991,402. Referring to claims 2, 13, 17, 28, Ross discloses an electronic license distribution system wherein the user of a software package must request a license for the software in order to use the software. The user receives an enabler key (code) that is used to decrypt the license (encrypted generated message) upon receipt of payment (request), which meets the limitations of receiving a request for software and generated an encrypted message and determining there is a code available to the computer and decrypting the encrypted message with the determined code. Once the license has been decrypted the user can then access the software package using the software license (Col. 7, line 23 – Col. 8, line 24). Ross does not disclose what material the software package will be comprised of. Jia discloses a system for software on demand and software subscription wherein the software packages contain audio, video, and text data (Col. 8, lines 57-60). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made for the software packages of Ross to include audio, video, and text data because it is well known for software packages to contain such data as taught in Jia (Col. 8, line 57 – Col. 9, line 36).

8. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
